Biography

After serving on the Associate In Missions program, the Sullys received their first career missionary appointment to Nigeria in 1991. In 1999 they moved to the nation of Burkina Faso as the first resident missionaries in this French West African nation. In 2004 they returned to New Brunswick, Canada, and pastored for eight years. They were involved in the Atlantic District serving as a district board member, Northeast Christian College teacher, and ladies committee member. Craig also served as the French Evangelism Coordinator for North America. In 2012 the Sullys were reappointed as career missionaries to Senegal/French West Africa. Arriving in Dakar on Christmas Eve 2016, they began their work in this nation. Upon their arrival there were no churches or church members. In 2017 they opened their first church and the following year the second preaching point was opened. Craig began Bible school classes with men and women eagerly studying the word of God. Lyna is greatly involved with children's ministry teaching Sunday School and leading several "Club de Vacances" (Vacation Bible School) each summer. Through Africa Aflame, the literature ministry of the African continent, the Sullys are extensively involved in French translation that is impacting the many French-speaking nations throughout Africa. Including nations where they have lived, the Sullys have opened or been involved in the opening stages of churches in eight African countries. Upon their return to the field, they will be expanding the various ministries they have started as well as establishing a permanent location for the church headquarters and training facility. This will include continued involvement in the sub-region by providing leadership, preaching, teaching, literature development and translation as opportunities arise.
