Biography

Steven Drost grew up on foreign fields and thrived on missions. It was only fitting that he should fall in love with and marry another missionary kid, Danita Hanscom. Shortly after their marriage in 1991, Steven Drost returned to Mexico with his new wife to serve as associates in missions. Upon their arrival, he began pastoring a church in Mexico City. From that congregation five other churches were started. They served as AIMers for four years until they received their missionary appointment in 1995. Bro. Drost was the vice president of the United Pentecostal Church of Mexico and now serves as the National Secretary. He is also the superintendent of two districts. He is the National Bible School Coordinator and teaches in, and administrates the Bible school in Guadalajara. As well as pastoring a thriving church in Guadalajara, he uses this congregation as a mother church to various missions throughout the city. Danita Drost was the National Sunday School Director for six years and is now the National Ladies Director.
