Biography

Keith and Beth Ikerd served as assistant pastor in Longview, Washington, for five years before going to Namibia as AIM workers. In Namibia they taught Bible school students and visited remote preaching points, establishing one new church and property. After two years in Namibia, they served in Bophuthatswana as intermediate missionaries where they had the oversight of the work of the late Sister Wilma Nix.

Upon returning to the States, they settled in the great land of Alaska, serving under Pastor Glover for thirteen years. In 2011 they received missionary appointment to Namibia, the land of their calling.

Their goal upon returning to Namibia is to build up the pastors and young ministers in order to establish more preaching points and churches all across this vast nation. We currently have four churches with much potential for growth. A Bible school curriculum will be very useful to the young ministers there. The Ikerds will endeavor to influence many people from the country of Angola who travel into Namibia with this gospel. There is currently no resident missionary in either Angola or Namibia.
